-how Mrs. Knox has made left-overs that used to be thrown away, into delicious dishes

CHE has spent much time gathering material from I dozens of different women who have devoted their lives to teaching the best and most economical ways of buying and preparing food, as well as from her own wide experience as a housekeeper and

"My idea," she says, "was to find truly attractive ways in which to utilize left-overs, and thereby help our Government in its food conservation plans."

Mrs. Know has found inviting uses for left-overs-she has devised numerous recipes, most of them based upon using the very things you generally throw away. And she has put them into a book of her own-"Food Economy"-that shows you how to practice real war-time economy in your kitchen.

Nashville, May 8.—A notable feature of the opening business session this morning of the state U. D. C. convention was the presidents address by Mrs. Birdie 'Owen, of Jackson, which set forth the patriotic achievements of the United Daughters of the Confederacy for the last twelve, months, and their plans for continued and even greater efforts in war relief months, and their plans for continued and even greater efforts in war relief work. Mrs. Owen said in part:

"Madame Chairman and Daughters of the Confederacy: The swiftly changing seasons have brought convention time again, and in these days of anxiety, when the fate of nations seems to hang in the balance, it is an inspiration to look into your earnest inspiration to look into your earnest faces and feel the unity of our pur-faces and feel the unity of our purpose.

"One year ago you gave me the highest testimonial of your confidence and esteem by unanimously electing me president of the Tennessee division, and I accepted the trust, appreciating and realizing the great honor and also the respontibilities. I pledged you my best efforts, and when I come before you today to give an account of my stewardship, I can conscientiously say that I have given you the best service of which I was capable.

"When I assumed my new duties "When I assumed my new duties immediately after the Memphis convention I resolved that I would strive for us not only 'to do our bit,' but our best, during the year, and I am sure that after you hear the splendid reports from committees and chapters you will see that the division has not fallen short of the goal I set."

Tributes to Lost Leaders. Mrs. Owen paid loving tribute to zation claimed by death during the past year—Mrs. John P. Hickman, Mrs. Grace M. Newbill and Mrs. N. B. Dozier. She recounted official visits to various towns and gave an account of Tennessee's part in the last reneral convention in Chattanooga,

She then reports: "Owing to the great amount of war work being done by the division, my correspondence has been unusually heavy. I have written about four hun-dred personal letters and perhaps one hundred cards, besides getting out 300 circular letters. I have also signed 130 centificates of membership. "Our watchword for the past year has been 'service,' and the Tennessee division is showing her patriotism in this present crisis in works rather than words. The call to arms of our young men of today meant to us the same urgent call for work as that devolving on our mothers and grand-mothers during the sixtles, but at the same time we must ever be loyal to our dearest charge—our heroes in

The call of our needy Confederate women is even stronger because to whom shall these women look for help in their declining

'In memory of our mothers let us see to it that no Confederate woman shall need comfort and sympathy where a U. D. C. chapter exists. The hour for present day patriotism has struck and the U. D.
